

DISCOVER Your Past Lives In Deep Meditation

If people become aware, they come to know that they have lived the same kind of life more than once – perhaps thousands of times.

The experience termed as déjà vu has a reality of its own. Déjà vu is the illusion of having already experienced something actually being experienced for the first time. It is not an experience of your life so far because you are not living this life for the first time; you have seen many lives, many deaths. And so naturally, during thousands of lives, it's simply impossible not to come to the same places to meet the same faces or to see exactly a certain tree that you have seen already seen in your past lives. The feeling is absolutely certain. Without any doubt: you are not imagining it; you have seen a certain person before, or you have been in the whole situation before, in the smallest detail.

If people become aware, they come to know that they have lived the same kind of life more than once – perhaps thousands of times. This was the use that the theory on reincarnation was put to. The aim was to create a great boredom because you have done all these things before and you have not learned anything, and you are doing them again and again.

For thousands of lives you have been running for power, for money and you are still doing that. It seems every life experience is being erased and you start from ABC all over again! If this theory is supported scientifically, you will have a great difficulty repeating the stupid game. You have played enough - it is time to change, it is time to raise your consciousness: it is time to go beyond the vicious circle of moving from one life to another, again and again like a wheel.

Renouncing the wheel is a totally different phenomenon. It means that all that you have done up to now has been done out of unconsciousness. Now it is high time to become mature and do things out of consciousness. Act with awareness; you have acted enough under the influence of unconsciousness. This wheel of reincarnation is due to unconsciousness. Once you become conscious, you see there is no point: you have achieved success many times. And what is the point? Death comes and erases everything. It is almost like making castles on sand - a wind comes and the castle is gone. And you start making another castle; again and again the same thing will happen. Déjà vu is an authentic another castle; again and again the same thing will happen. Déjà vu is an authentic experience, but it is only a fragment of a far greater phenomenon - reincarnation.

Either you can exist as an unconscious being - and you have existed that way from the very beginning - or you can exist as a conscious being. As a conscious being, all your actions are bound to change. Your life will have a different aroma. Your actions will have different goals. And everything put together, you will have only one dimension: how to get free from the unconscious actions, unconscious imprisonment; how to be absolutely conscious and move out of all chains.

But how can you do this? With meditation. Meditation will then be nothing but a method to prepare the ground for you to jump from unconsciousness into consciousness. And that is the greatest quantum leap. All of us are eternal pilgrims, journeying, journeying, from one life to another. And all that you have experienced, you have experienced many times; many springs and again the spring comes.

it can't be new. Existence moves in a circle, not in a straight line. It is like the rotating wheel of seasons: you have seen many springs and again the spring comes.

So, somewhere deep in your unconscious, you are carrying all the memories of all the past lives. It is very, very possible that again and again you will come to situations which are still human beings after all.

Somewhere deep in your unconscious, you are carrying all the memories of all the past lives. It is very, very possible that again and again you will come to situations which are alike and suddenly you feel as if it has happened before which are alike and suddenly you feel as if it has happened before. And it has happened before! Perhaps the actors were different, but how can they be very much different? Human beings are still human beings after all.

You have listened to many people before, many of them masters. It is not possible that you have come for the first time to a master. How is it possible? For many millennia you have searching. It is impossible not to have come across a real master. You may come across a Jesus or a Buddha or a Krishna or a Rinzai or a Bodhidharma. Down the ages, and in so many lives, how can you avoid not coming across a Buddha?

You may not have met Osho before - that's possible, but that's not a problem as you may have met someone very much like Osho. You may have looked with the same love at some other master, with the same trust, with the same open heart, and it is happening again! You may have drunk from some other master in the same way with much sensitivity and receptivity. And it is happening again! It can remind you of the floating – and forgotten - fragrance of your past lives, the nostalgia.

So accept it, welcome it, and when it comes, enjoy it, and you will become more and more capable of it. When in deep meditation, you can easily remember your past lives sometimes, and that's a great experience. So allow this phenomenon more and more accessibility to you.

If this idea gets very settled in your mind - that this is a kind of imagination - then those déjà vu's will stop. If you think it is just a mind game then you will start dropping it. You will become resistant and defensive against it. No, déjà vu is a reality, because we have lived so many lives and we have loved in so many ways. We have been angry in so many ways with so many people. We have been friends and enemies, and all that is happening to you now has many times before.

Sometimes two similar things - not exactly alike but almost alike - get linked with each other, and suddenly there is déjà vu.
