

GOD of Love

Surrender
to something higher than the both of you--that is the God of love

The very myth that there is a God of Love is beautiful, it is a tremendous understanding. The two lovers can surrender to the God and they remain independent. And when you are independent there is beauty---otherwise you become just a shadow, or your partner becomes a shadow. If your partner becomes a shadow, in that very moment you will start losing interest-- who loves a shadow? If you become a shadow your partner will start losing interest in you. We want to love human beings, not shadows.

There is no need to become anybody's shadow. You remain yourself, and your partner remains herself or himself. In fact, by surrendering to the God of love, you become authentic. And you are never as authentic as when you become authentic for the first time. Two authentic beings can love, and can love deeply, and then there is no need to hold back. Let me underline this idea: when you are surrendered to the God of love, then it is not very important whether your partner remains with you or leaves you or whether you leave. One thing is important : that love remains. Your surrender is towards love, not towards your partner. So the only thing is not to betray love. Lovers can change ; love can remain. Once you have understood that, there is no fear.

Darshan Diaries for Madmen only, ch# 4

Read or Listen to Full Discourse on
www.oshoworld.com